

Joyce Dixon

Joyce Dixon age 34 born and raised on the North and East sides of Wilmington. Current Program Supervisor at Ark Learning Center where I have been for the past 5yrs.

Working with children has always been my passion. I formed and coordinated Fashion shows for our communities, working with youth living in the inner city since 2013. I started my own Non Profit teen organization for teens in 2014 for teens ages 13-18. With this organization, I have helped teens with self-esteem, schooling, college applications and job seeking. In 2018 I became a Child Advocate working beside parents and children to find the best schooling that accommodates child's specific needs.

Along with my teen organization, Bold & Boss, I am also apart of Ascending Queens teen organization for young women and the Game Changers coalition. Just like any other organization or event that I am part of, I joined Game Changers because I know it has the power and leaders involved to better the future for the youth.

While I have close family, brothers and uncles who are currently apart of the prison population, I myself have been affected from imprisonment multiple times due to unpaid fines. These are just a few reasons I am fighting beside the Smart Justice Campaign to stop Mass Incarceration due to petty crimes. I plan to use my resources and do outreach in any way I can to prevent our youth from falling victim to our justice system.
