

How to Challenge Resurgent Hate Groups

Join YWCA Delaware for a special Investor's Cabinet event, where a dynamic panel will lead a discussion on how to challenge the rise of hate groups while keeping our basic freedoms intact:

Theatre N at Nemours

1007 N. Orange Street, Wilmington, DE 19801

Tues, January 30

6:00 PM to 8:00 PM

Erin Daly, Esq. is Professor of Law and co-founder of Dignity Rights Project at Delaware Law School, & has worked internationally on the “right to dignity” and on reconciliation after political upheavals.

Daryle Lamont Jenkins was an eyewitness to the “Alt-Right” rally in Charlottesville, and founder of One People's Project that tracks and reports on far-Right groups.

Rabbi Malkah Binah Klein traveled to Charlottesville during the demonstrations as part of a delegation of rabbis from T'ruah: The Rabbinic Call for Human Rights.

Claire Rasmussen, PhD teaches political theory and public law at University of Delaware; her research examines the political and cultural construction of identity, which includes the study of hate groups.

Tickets $17, register here:
<http://bit.ly/AntiHateGroup>

$2 parking at the Park BPG Garage (1101 N Orange St, bring ticket inside for validation). Price of admission includes light refreshments.

eliminating racism
empowering women
ywca